

A line chart is not the appropriate graph for a distribution involving a small, discrete number of individuals:
There is no reason to connect the income levels of different individuals!
Not all the individuals' names are listed, which is another oddity.
The units are not easy to read along the y-axis.
The line is too thick.

